HITM'S "SAFE HANDS" PROGRAM

The Foodborne Illness Hazard

It has been estimated that there are about 76 million foodborne illnesses each year in America, resulting in 325,000 hospitalizations and 5,000 deaths. Government statistics indicate that at least 25 percent of these illnesses are due to improper hand washing. These illnesses cost billions of dollars in medical charges, lost wages, lost business, lawyers' fees, and legal claims, and can lead to long-term debilitating illnesses. To avoid causing foodborne illnesses, good personal hygiene practices, particularly when handling food must be followed and maintained.

Hand Washing and Food Safety

A part of any effective food safety program must include correct, safe hand washing performed by employees as they handle and prepare food. Employees must be taught to know why hand washing is critical to food safety and how and when to wash their hands and fingertips to reduce the pathogenic bacteria found particularly underneath the fingernails.

HITM's "Safe Hands" Program

Zero-defect, safe hand and fingertip washing is no mystery once you have helped your employees master the material in HITM's "Safe Hands" Program. Safety does not happen by itself. It comes by following the steps outlined below, by ensuring that your employees know why these steps exist, and empowering them to follow the procedures outlined in this program. Your

If you initiate the "Safe Hands" Program, HITM will provide your facility with a dated "Safe Hands" wall certificate and "Safe Hands" certification lapel pins for your employees who have gone through hand washing training. We will provide a customer information brochure with your name on it so that your customers can read about what your "Safe Hands" program does. To maintain your "Safe Hands" program, you need to train your new employees before they begin handling food. Also, HITM recommends that every six months, you retrain your employees with HITM's "Safe Hands" materials. At that time, HITM will provide you with a new "Safe Hands" wall certificate and employee recertification wallet cards.

The cost of the starter kit, plus the brochures and wall certificate, is $205.00, plus $2.00 each for extra lapel pins.

Upon completing your initial "Safe Hands" training, as described in the starter kit materials, you will contact HITM to receive the following.
